Season Going Great

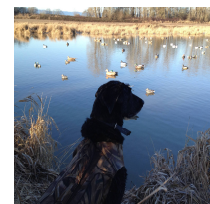

Opening day turned out to be better than expected. In the weeks preceding opening weekend we had not seen many ducks in the area. We were pleasantly surprised with good numbers being taken on opening day. The average is running a 4 to 5 birds per hunter each day. With some limits being taken. With the blustery conditions at the coast blowing birds inland it should continue to get better. The opening of Goose season was red hot last Saturday with morning and evening numbers of geese counts going into double figures. As always, the weather has always played a big part in how the hunt goes we can only hope that things keep going our way for the rest of the season. Good luck and stay safe.
